Their legacy remains in the architecture, the language and the food. Even the name of this wondrous region, Andalucía, comes from the Arabic name, Al-Andalus. Its twisting streets reveal architecture influenced by centuries of Moorish domination, birdcage balconies and more. Step into the Iglesia de Santa María la Mayor, a church commissioned by Ferdinand and Isabella in 1485. The church, which was built on the site of a mosque, wasn’t completed until the 17th century, so the architecture combines Gothic, Renaissance and baroque elements as well as vestiges of its Moorish beginnings. Visit the Plaza de Toros, one of Spain’s finest bullfighting rings.
Local Flavor: Visit a winery for a wine tasting and lunch.

DAY 4 ~ SEVILLE
Excursion: Seville. Seville, the cultural heart of southern Spain, is a showcase of some of Spain’s greatest architecture. The Moors conquered Seville in 712 and built the Alcázar in the 10th century. It became a royal residence after the Spanish recaptured the city three centuries later. The city’s magnificent cathedral is the world’s largest Gothic building, and the Barrio de Santa Cruz is a picturesque warren of medieval lanes, bougainvillea and fountains.
