THE WOLVES & WILDLIFE OF YELLOWSTONE

Amidst crisp air, bare trees, frosted earth, and brilliant thermal features of Yellowstone National Park, the wildlife viewing in winter is better than any other time of year. The elements of nature are in full sway and its wild inhabitants—close-knit packs of wolves—are hunting, mating, and surviving.

Dear Carolina Alumni and Friends,

Please join fellow Tar Heels and friends on an extraordinary winter adventure: a seven-day wildlife expedition to Yellowstone—North America’s best wolf-watching habitat.

Adorned with frost and snow and with few visitors, experience the park when its beauty is least touched by the outside world than at any other time of the year. Hushed landscapes are the setting for steaming geysers, trees covered in ice crystals and the movements of bison, elk, pronghorn, bighorn sheep and other wildlife—followed closely by the park’s wolves.

With expert naturalists on board custom vehicles, explore and learn about the animals, ecosystem, geothermal activity and history of the park. Visit the Museum of the Rockies after hours for a private guided tour and special farewell dinner, among other exclusive experiences. At day’s end, overnight in welcoming hotels and a park lodge.

This is a small-group expedition and space is limited. With significant savings of more than $600 per couple, we anticipate this tour will fill quickly.

Reserve your spot today and share this brochure with family and friends who may be interested in traveling with you.

Book this experience today by calling (877) 962-3980 or by returning the enclosed reservation form.
Yours at Carolina,

Douglas S. Dibbert ’70
President, UNC General Alumni Association

Wolves stay in range of the movements of their prey, and with the season’s bare trees and frosty backdrops, conditions are better than any other time of year to spot the elusive predators. During this full-day safari, your driver and guides will share a wealth of knowledge, stories, and a trained eye to spot wildlife.

Dramatic stories and perspectives about the saga of the wolves’ demise and comeback over the last several decades add to this second day of scouting.

Afterward, stop at the studio of an award-winning photographer and listen to his stories of amazing wildlife encounters. Admire the myriad of wildlife photography displayed in the gallery, and take an opportunity to snowshoe around the property.

Many of the dirt trails and boardwalks in Yellowstone are not routinely shoveled in the winter. It is our expectation that guests on this program can manage cold temperatures; walk on uneven, frozen, or snow-covered terrain; as well as have the ability to get in and out of all-terrain vehicles and manage stairs without assistance. There are opportunities for differing abilities to enjoy Yellowstone National Park. Also keep in mind that you will experience varying altitudes, from 5,282 to 8,391 feet.
